Next to the facis that a uniform four percent stock would, on account of its low rate of interest, be more acceptable to the people, and more desirable to capitalisis on account of the interest being payable one per cent every three months in their own countries and in its coin, your reasons are the very ones that brought me to the conclusions that satisfy my mind of the feasibility of the proposed pian of negotiating the new stock. I feet satisfied that this pian would have been preferred by foorernor Boutwell but for the assurances of bankers that state a stock could not be negotiated. Now that he has yielded to their suggestions, they turn upon him and his project and insist that their banks must be "let alone," and that the government must not redeem the stocks held by it in trust for them, but must continue to pay them their six per cent interest in gold. The government has now the right to redeem the most of the stock so held by it for the banks. You say in answer to your assumption of my views, "We now have three descriptions of bonds, which have from five to thirty years to run. The new bill rent year. This privilege of the government to redeem at its option is expressed on its face of each bond, and is therefore no hardship on the banks. There is talk by the banks of "vested rights." Has it ever occurred to such that the people, too, have some vested rights left them, and that the "vested rights is ever occurred to such that the people, too, have some vested rights left them, and that the "vested rights" caimed by the sew are but vested wrongs to the many?

You say "Mr. Boutwell may have a better knowledge of what can be effected in the way of borrowing at low rates in this or other countries than I (you) possess, but from the best information, as well as from my (your) own observation, I am (you are) persuaded he is doomed to a great disappointment, and a failure in the attempt will be most damaging to the already not too strong credit of the government." Passing the gratuitous fling at the credit of the government whose stocks having but eleven years to run are now two percent above the par of gold, you will excuse me for asking whether the wish that the Secretary may be doomed to disappointment was not father to the thought?

Most disinterested persons who have the welfare of the country above their private interests at heart feel that if the banks, instead of sending lobbies here to prevent the passage of the Functing bill and other wholesome legislation, would place themselves in perfect accord and unison with the reasonable wishes of the misses of the people, and would take hold of the proposed loan, as they did of the loans during the war, no doubt a large part of it would be taken up readily by the people of our own country to go aerond trying to peddle its bonds in foreign lands, begging them to lend us their money." That "I may do for individuals, but it is undignified for this great country to place itself in such a situation," and you add, "if loreigners want our bonds they will come here for them."

Now, it is with nations as with individuals. No particular dignity comes to either fro the floors of Congross now stands confessed; it was suspected ait along that some private interest dictated it.

You say "Congress may pass laws till doomsday, but they will not oring the money, unless adapted to the circumstances and popular with the people," and that you "nave yet to meet the first man who approves of Mr. Sherman's bill." A bank president, like a king surrounded by his courtiers, at ting in the parior of a bank of discount, with none around him but such as hold views in secordance with his own, and only such others as have favors to ask in the way of discounts, has, perhaps, not the best possible opportantity to ascertain the pulse of public opinion. From the start I felt anxions to conciliate the national canks. I know their power for good and their still greater power for evil. The great aid they gave the government during the war was not forgotten, and it was evident to my mind that they should again be employed as agents to assist in placing the new loan at home and abroad. For this service the people could well afford to give them a liberal compensation. One per cent for all the new stock to be taken by them for their own use, and for their customers, would be to the government but as the dust in scales of the transaction as compared with the great and hasing benefit that would have been derived therefrom. But just here "dignity" and pride as well come in on the other side. Not for, but against the banks. Legislators having heard much on this subject in regard to foreign countries bring it right home and gravely contend that it is beneath the dignity of the nation to peedle the stocks, and have them hawked about by banks and agents, and that those who desired the stocks could go to the Treasury direct and purchase them there and besides save the becceptage to the government that the banks would otherwise get. It is doubted whether the dignity" argument in this case is as clear to the understanding of bankers as in the case of the ioneign markets. My mind is so obtuse that it can't see a payers, think you, stand it, and, irso, how long?

The making and issuing of money is the prerogative of the sovereign. Here the people are sovereign; it therefore belongs to them to issue the money of the country. If they choose to delegate this power to there that their own governmental agencia, it will, of course, be for such considerations and on such terms as they may dectate. Bankers connected with banks of issue should bear these facts constantly in mind; they would then learn to consuit the people, who give them their life and being, and to study their solfish interests less and the temper of the poonle hoore. They would in the card be generally become in the whole question from the single standpoint of a banker, and seem to forget that the prosperity of the whole people is most especially the interest of the banks. I, too, am a banker, yet I have tried to look at this question of finance in all its bearings upon all the interests of our whole country, and thus looking at it have be some satisfied that the banks, as banks, should not interfere. They should remain out of the fight and leave legislation free. Most of the members of Congress desire to do the very b at that can be done for the general good. The people have their eyes fixed not only upon them, but upon the bankers who assume to direct legislation for them. They are as anxious to have this financial question settled right, and at once, as they were five years ago to have the other and first part of the war so settled. Bank and other interests may defeat their wishes for a while, but they will be sure to conquer in the end, you of course know that there is a party in favor of repudiation of the entire debt, and that there are nonest, well-meaning men, with strong convictions, who think that paper money should be issued by the government exclusively. They argue that this would save the people from tweive to twenty multion dollars annually. These two great antagonisms to themselves the banks must meet.

the types-you will notice that all the way through is-cheerul acquiescence in what the masses of the people think to be right they can avoid these dangers?

Banks cannot afford to make issues with the people, it is not safe for them to do so. The fate of the old United States Bank that once flourished and then perished in your city should be an everlasting admonition to all banks in like cases offending. But it would seem that banks, like individuals, never learn to profit by the experience of others.

It is just possible that the short-sighted self-interest of some bankers may procure from Congress the passage of such a funding bill as will be satisfactory to it, but that will be entirely unsatisfactory to the great body of the people; or it may succeed in preventing action upon the entire subject of the banks and the funding of the debit but neither would be a settlement of the question. Depend upon it, the next Congress will not be disposed to give the banks as favorable terms as are offered them in the recommendations of the Secretary of the Treasury. Many banks see this. They believe that if the question is staved off, or if there is too much given the banks the next fail's elections will turn on these questions, and that the banks have nothing to gam and much to fear from such a state of things. They know, too, that the first offers in such cases are generally the best. They are, therefore, anxious to accept the situation.

You will notice that these views conflict in some respects with Governor Boutwell's recommendation, and much more with Air. Senator Sherman's bill, as it passed the Senate, but that I prefer either project to such a one as you propose, or to any other that shall fix a uniform rate of historia as high as five per cent, and making such a loan for a long term of years.

In the hope that the whole matter will be ami-cably adjusted to the satisfaction of the banks and of the people as well, I am, very respectfully yours, F. E. SPINNER, Treasurer United States. Mr. Thomas Robins, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Captain General in Camaguey-The Promised Campaign-His Official Accounts-The Insurrection Again Over-An Effort to Create Public Feeling in the States-More Blood-An American Filibuster Captured and an American Sailor Killed.

The Captain General is to remain at Puerto Prinoperations. According to letters from that place he "has laid out a magnificent plan of campaign, bellion in the Central Department, the residence of the so-called government and insurrectionary Prestdent." Among other things the system of defence of the railroad line to Nuevitas is to be changed, the insurgents are to be driven from its vicinity, and the troops heretofore engaged in guardproclamation of his Excellency the manifesto of Napoleon Arango appeared, and the capabilities of the pen being thus exhausted, the sword has been taken up in earnest. The insurgents did not seem to be duly impressed with these documents, as fol-lowing their issue a night attack was made upon Puerto Principe, which contained the respective authors, and which, though insignificant in its result, The capture of the detachment from Boulila and attack on that which went out from Las Minas, as mentioned in a previous despatch, showed that they

Havana on Saturday last, Colonel Suances, of the regiment La Marina, was placed temporarily in command of the forces, Goyenethe being absent in Gualmaro. Information of no great importance has peen furnished us at intervals through officia sources, generally in the form of telegrams from his Excellency. One of these states that Goyeneche, under date of the 31st, from Nuevitas, reports that in Cascorro. In the operations which had taken place in all directions and at short distances have only been encountered some small bands of insurgents, and, according to the notices of those presenting themselves, the files of the enemy are melting away; many have deserted them and sed to the mountains for safety. The story of the emparkation of Jordan is repeated, and the cap ture of a depository of arms in the mountains by the garrison of Gibanica is reported. This is the sum of the information furnished us up to last-evening, when there appeared in the Gazette, over the signature of the Captain General's secretary, another of those iong documents—practically an announcement of the termination of the insurrection—evidently intended for effect abroad, in which assertion and conclusion take the place of fact. Its character is such as to give color of truth to the assertion that the only object of the Captain General's visit to the Central Department is by proclamation and braggadocio to create the impression that the insurrection is over, and to prevent any action on the part of the government of the United States favorable to the Cubans. The roport is dated at Puerto Principe the 3d, and appeared in the Gazette of last evening, a celerity which is certainly unexampled, if possible, as it must needs have been brought to Calbarien, the nearest point of the telegram. It states that Govence he arrived at Puerto Principe on the list, and confirmed the satisfactory notices before made public and the general reaction in favor of peace.

The House of Representatives had dissolved and ture of a depository of arms in the mountains by the

made public and the general reaction in layor of peace.

The House of Representatives had dissolved and Cespedes, who has been twice at point of being captured, is wandering about. Two torpedoes had been discovered on the line of railroad, piaced there with the evident design of blowing up the train. Their dimensions and character are described from which it is assumed they were made in a foreign land.

The news from other parts of the island is not important.

The news from other parts of the island is not important.

A private letter from Santi Espiritu says that fires are burning on every side of the city and many were dying of the cholera.

The following persons have been convicted of disloyalty in Trinidad and their sentences passed to superior authority for approvat-D, José Bravo, D, J. de la Caridad Turnio, Rafael Perez and his son, D, José Antonio Perez. The following have been arrested for political offences in Clenfuegos:—Don Mariano Guerra, D. Trinidad Madraga, Doña Victoria Garcia and dive sons, Doña Isabel Garcia, Doña Jacinta Madruga and one son, Doña Luciana Duran and three sons. In Santiago de Cuba the following have been shot:—D, Island Rodrigae, D. Augustin Lara and a free negro named Pablo Aguilera. In Santa Clara D. Francisco Pedrosa is on trai for disloyalty. The Engancese Español mentions that ten respons were recently shot in Bayamo for the same offines.

An American, named John Williamson, who, it is said, formed one of the "Auvas" expedition under Cisneros, has been captured near Sagga is Conca, and taken to Sagua is Grande, where he is now held a prisoner. The Habana journals state that he presented himself, stating that he had long intended to desert, and that the insargeats, knowing this, had deprived him of his arms.

An Irish-American sailor, named Thomas Kerry, was lett behind by some vessel some months since, shortly after which he was sent to the bospital, from whence he was discharged a few weeks since. The had been wandering about the streets, generally in a state of injuxication, and on Sunday last was struck lipon the head by a ruffian who had come down here on a Spanish gunboat, opening the old wound and causing him to bleed to death. It is not known that his assatiant has been arrested.
